- Alan Reid A vital member of celebrated Scottish folk group Battlefield Band from 1969 until 2010 Alan helped cement the band's international status with his story-style songwriting and sensitive renditions of traditional song. He was nominated in the 2009 Scots Tradition Awards in the 'Composer of the Year' category. His writing also features in the current National Theatre of Scotland's production of the musical 'The Glasgow Girls'.
- Rob van Sante, born in Holland, lives in the north of England and is well respected in the U.K. folk scene. Noted for subtle guitar accompaniments and fine harmony singing Rob also produces and engineers national and international acts at his recording studio, his most recent production being the latest CD of John Conolly, writer of folk standard 'Fiddlers' Green.'
- The duo has three critically acclaimed albums under its belt and has toured North America, Europe, New Zealand and Australia. Their music and drama presentation on the life of Scots mariner John Paul Jones was showcased at the 2013 Edinburgh Festival and in its latest incarnation, is a multi media experience featuring song, storytelling and a slide show.

An entertaining evening of Scots song old and new from two exceptional musicians'
